AMERICA'S INSULATION POLICY

Americans have rediscovered a vital truth—there can be no isolation without insulation. It was discovered first, in a formal way, 117 years ago when President Monroe laid down the Monroe doctrine. Two sentences of his declaration were:

"In the wars of the European powers in matters relating to themselves we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy so to do. It is only when our rights are invaded or seriously menaced that we resent injuries or make preparation for our defense."

President Roosevelt has restated the Monroe doctrine. In his special message to congress Thursday he called for intensive preparation "for our defense." He made it clear that the United States will prepare itself to resist any attempt of foreign powers to extend their influence to this hemisphere.

The case for intensified preparedness rests on shocking evidence that an aggressor nation in Europe now bears no respect for neutrality; the folly of believing in security based on national honor has been revealed too clearly to be ignored. The isolation policy which has preoccupied American thought for so many years has been made useless by itself; no nation without sufficient power to resist aggression can maintain isolation. America's vital interests are "seriously menaced."

The President has presented the opinion of his countrymen. His call for additional defense, for additional production of defense equipment, and for revitalization of the nation's physical and moral fiber will produce no dissent. It is the resolute will of his countrymen that nothing should be left undone to protect this hemisphere from invasion; it is their will that everything feasible be done to help those forces abroad which are struggling to check aggression at its point of origin.

The Allies may fail. There is nothing the United States can do immediately to help them more than it already is doing—and that may not be enough. Realization of this has had a terrific impact on American thought, not only North American but South American thought. There is no reason to believe that a victorious Germany would suddenly be transformed from a militarist to a pacifist state. Conquest breeds the lust for conquest. A war economy cannot be abandoned without precipitating collapse. A victorious Germany would be looking for new foes to conquer, and it has no reason to love the United States. Nor has Japan any reason to be gentle and considerate of our interests. The President does not designate these sources of danger by name, but there is no doubt of their identity.

The financial outlay proposed would bring the defense budget total up to $3,276,000,000 during the next fiscal year. That is still far short of the estimated $4,500,000,000 spent by Germany last year, without taking into account the much greater purchasing power of dollars in the reich. But it is a beginning toward creation of an adequate insulation for hemispheric safety. If the amount seems alarming to some they should consider what might be the cost of spending less.

President Roosevelt does well to affirm confidence in existing national defense and the professional skill of the nation's defenders. It is not the fault of individuals that more defense suddenly has become essential, any more than it is the fault of the Allies' soldiers and sailors that they are fighting at a disadvantage against a powerful enemy. It is not a time for recrimination, but a time to repair the sources of future recrimination before it is too late.

The necessity for doing this is not pleasant. But it is being made sickeningly clear that there is no security in high intentions and only thin hope of security in half measures. The United States has no desire to beat the war drums, but neither does it have any intention of letting the war drums of a foreign power paralyze it into servile acceptance of the possibility of conquest.

Clouds of destruction have laid much of the world in ruin and are rolling onward. The tragedy that has struck Europe to its knees will blight the tree of civilization on the continent for centuries to come. It is too late now to avert the shambles there, but it is not too late to make sure that any attempt to spread it into this hemisphere will be thwarted by the inevitable reward of those who take up the sword—a more formidable sword. John Quincy Adams' pledge should be repeated:

"This hand, to tyrants ever sworn the foe.
For Freedom only deals the deadly blow."

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, May 19

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of a very interesting and perhaps eventful day, with much pertaining to conventional Sabbath activities under high pressure. New matters pertinent to church and clerical plans are due to succeed despite firm opposition from elders and superiors, as well as group impediments. Perseverance and sound plans win the day, but keep firm control on tongue and temper.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very lively and enterprising year, with the energies and faculties under high tension. New projects of an ambitious nature should move resolutely toward progress and stability in spite of determined opposition and obstacles. Initiative and industry win out. In purely personal relations there may be much festivity and probably romance.

A child born on this day may be energetic, aggressive and ambitious, ready to work hard for its objectives and to vanquish stubborn obstacles and possible hostility from high places. It may win popularity and good fortune.

For Monday, May 20

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a conflicting one, with happy and propitious auguries for all of a personal nature—social, domestic, artistic and affectional. These hold major attention. In other directions, affiliations with groups or influential personages, there may be an open clash or secret undermining. Unless the aims are for public or social benefits, there may be defeat. Seek feminine assistance and develop their plans and ideals.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very happy and successful year in their private life—social, artistic, domestic and romantic. In other activities there may be lack of co-operation from those in power unless such are animated by lofty feminine ideals and constructive ends. Clubs, groups, fraternities offer opposition unless the aim is lofty and humanitarian.

A child born on this day may have many social graces and talents, possibly devoted to human welfare.

This administration has certainly given debtors a break. A dollar is scarcely worth what it costs to collect it.

It has become obvious that the United States needs a great deal more in the way of air defense than plain hot air.

Why talk about "scraps of paper" and broken pledges three thousand miles away? We have our own "scrap of paper" adopted at the Democratic national convention in 1932.

Vitamin E Seen As Factor
In Campaign On Paralysis

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A MOTHER rat who has been deprived of certain vitamins in her diet does not seem to have much connection with the cure of the cases of paralysis, but such association has been made through recent research.

Vitamin E, which is found in most green vegetables, has been known as the "sterility vitamin." If removed from the diet of female animals, they are unable to produce litters.

Dr. Herbert Evans, of the University of California, thought it might be interesting to take a mother rat who had just been delivered of a litter, remove vitamin E from her diet, hence from her milk, and see what would happen to the progeny. He was expecting some change in the reproductive functions, but to his surprise he found that most of the little rats developed a peculiar form of paralysis before the tenth day of life. When he added vitamin E to their diet, the paralysis disappeared.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Tried It In Paralysis
A New York neurologist heard him read a paper on this subject and thought he would like to try out the effect of vitamin E on some cases of obscure paralysis. The particular cases of paralysis had to do with muscular atrophy. One such case was that of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis of the spinal cord.

With the use of concentrated vitamin E, this case was cured, the first time on record for this disease. London clinicians report that in children with muscular atrophy results of treatment with vitamin E were remarkable. Every patient, except one, which was treated for six weeks, improved.

The results have been comparable to the results obtained in pernicious anemia. Fifteen years ago this was considered an incurable malady, and nobody supposed that the changes that had occurred in the stomach and blood and bone marrow were capable of assistance by any form of medication. But the use of liver extract has shown that these grace anatomical defects can actually be overcome.

Outlook Changes
Up to the present time it has been supposed that any time a nerve cell was destroyed, the outlook for regeneration was hopeless. Whether the use of vitamin E in these cases proves highly successful or not, at any rate the demonstration so far has changed the pessimistic view of doctors concerning nerve regeneration, and paralysis is a combination of a change in a muscle and a nerve.

We are coming to believe that it is impossible to say which is more important. We do not know literally where the nerve leaves off and the muscle begins. It may be that in many forms of paralysis the muscle atrophy occurs first and involves the nerve secondarily. The new vitamin E appears to affect the muscle more than the nerve cell, but it is unimportant except as a theoretical discussion. The happy and encouraging thing is that these cases which have heretofore seemed so hopeless may possibly be helped.

Questions And Answers

J. T. G.: "Please give me the symptoms of colitis and a diet for it."

Answer—Colitis is an inflammation of the large intestine. However, it has come to mean that anyone who has an irritable colon or is "colon conscious" is labeled with the diagnosis of "colitis." The diet should be mild and free from roughage. The principal treatment in most cases, however, unless it is a specific colitis such as amoebic is to encourage the patient to forget his symptoms and eat rather widely. A diet recommended as follows: cream vegetable soups—tomato, pea, celery, etc.; oatmeal and rice—these thoroughly boiled for at least 2 hours in order to break up cellulose husks—served with cream and sugar; eggs—soft boiled, poached, coddled, scrambled; toast and toasted crackers; potatoes—mashed and baked; mashed peas; carrots; spinach; ice cream and ices; custards; tapioca; wine jelly; rice pudding; orange juice. Avoid fried foods, meat of all kinds, fruit, vegetables with a heavy residue, salads, highly-spiced foods and butter.

G. O.: "What is the difference between the staphylococcus germ and the streptococcus germ?"
Answer—The difference between the two germs, in the first place, is in their form; in the second place, in their effect on the tissues of the body. Both of them are small, round organisms, but the staphylococcus grows in bunches like grapes and the streptococcus grows in chains. The staphylococcus, after it invades the body, produces pus. The streptococcus usually produces an inflammation not of a pus-like character. Both produce fever and both produce what is known as "sepsis."

M. G.: "Will arthritis affect the eyes? If so, in what way?"

Answer—Chronic arthritis does not affect the eyes. There is a form of conjunctivitis called "rheumatic," but this term is usually applied to conditions of which physicians do not know the cause.

Talks On "Enemies Within Our Walls"

"Aggressive Enemies Within Our Walls" is the subject of the sermon which Rev. S. Talmage, Magann will reach at the morning worship service of the First Baptist church tomorrow.

Explaining his sermon topic, Rev. Magann declares:

"Many great truths may be gathered from the current events of our confused world. The rapid destruction of so many neutral nations points to the fact that even a most scrupulous neutrality is by no means an adequate protection or source of security."

"Each nation in search of security and protection must be keenly conscious and fully prepared for all enemies within her walls as well as those without. Many of these truths apply also to personal religious living."

An installation of all church and Sunday school officers for the new church year, which started May 1, will be held at the evening service.

Trinity Lutheran Pastor To Start Series of Talks

Opening a series of sermons on the general theme, "Heaven", Rev. George D. Keister, pastor, will preach on the subject, "What Kind of a Place Is Heaven?" at the morning worship service of the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow, the Festival of Holy Trinity.

Complete services for the church are as follows:

Sunday school, 9:45—(Jeremiah 23:21-32) Charles W. Youtz, supt.

"The mixture of truth and falsehood is often confusing. It may seem next to impossible to sift out the two different elements. These days are seeing the flooding of the minds and hearts of people with propaganda that is both harmful and far from the truth. False prophets were present in the days of the Old Testament prophets. There were wolves in sheep clothing. There is only one test of the true prophesies of religion, and that is the Holy Bible. Falsehoods and misrepresentations may be thrust upon us. God's Word is to be the judging rule."

Morning worship, 11:00. Sermon, "What kind of a place is Heaven?"

"The life that lies beyond the grave is a topic of eternal interest and discussion. Millions are dying natural deaths and still more are being sacrificed in the horrible conflict of war. The minds of people are turned to think about that existence that follows the end of this earthly life. Speculation and fantastic statements may be the foundations of what many believe about the life beyond the grave. There is one real source of authority, and that is the Holy Bible. Heaven is a real place. It is more than a mental state and condition. The Holy Scriptures speak very clearly and plainly about heaven."

Intermediate Luther League, 6:30. Devotional topic, "Resources—Personal Development." Leader, Josephine Hart.

Announcements

Choir association meets Monday evening.

The Synod of Ohio of the United Lutheran church in America meets in annual convention at St. Luke's church, in Youngstown, from Monday, May 20 to Tuesday, May 23.

Evening worship at Washingtonville Lutheran church, Sunday evening at 7:30. The choir of Leontonia High school will present a program of music.

Christian Science

Society Services

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship service of the Christian Science Society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kil.) in Cleveland the first and third Sundays of each month at 11 a. m.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. A mid-week service is held at the church the first Wednesday in each month at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Corinthians 15:53).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding" (Proverbs 9:6).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let the perfect model be present in your thoughts instead of its demoralized opposite. This spiritualization of thoughts lets in the light, and brings the divine Mind. Life not death, into your consciousness."

This society maintains a reading room at 136 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday.

The public is invited to attend all services and to visit the reading room.

SOMETHING SPECIAL— READ THIS!

We are now in shape to offer you a building site which is located on the Youngstown Road, a short distance from what is known as the Brooks' Farms and we can price this to you at $7.00 a front foot. It will be restricted for building in this way: The tract will have a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 250 feet and will cost $700. Whoever buys, must build 100 feet from the center of the road and also must build in the center of the tract; the cost of the dwelling erected must not be less than $3,000. Now this should appeal to anyone who wants to build a new home for the reason a cheap, shabby house will not be built in line. Now if you are interested, see me at once as this will not last.

CLOTHES FOR THE HONEYMOON ARE IMPORTANT

When you marry to "live happily ever after," the clothes you buy to take with you on your honeymoon are important. The going-away suit is usually a "simple but smart" affair. It is in shades of lettuce green. Blouse and skirt are separate so you can wear each piece with contrasting blouse or skirt. Ann Neagle's outfit is suitable for teas, luncheons and afternoon engagements. It is a white linen shirtwaist frock with huge pockets embroidered in bright blue, crimson and gold, with button-down flaps. The colors are repeated in the costume jewelry and the large hat of crimson straw. For evening Marsha Hunt recommends a diaphanous white chiffon frock, the bodice draped from shoulder to waistline, the long V being filled with a pleated dickey of chiffon. Balloon sleeves are gathered into tight bands at wrist, epaulets and girdle are studded with gold and pearl beads.

The very essence of femininity is shown in this romantic Anne Adams dress, Pattern 4465. Extended shoulders cool over your upper arms and give a wide-shouldered effect. For delightful, unusual trim, use a froth of ruching all around the armholes and in double rows on the shoulders. Or if you prefer lace edging instead, it gives a very dainty effect. Tucks hold the soft, airy bodice lines in place. Don't miss the arresting new shape of the high waist-seaming. The flaring skirt has double panels both front and back. You might make a sash, and perhaps the bodice, too, in gay contrast. A cool, special-occasion dress!

The Sunday school with classes for all ages meets at 9 a. m. The Bible class meets at 9:15 a. m. Lee Schaefer, superintendent.

Sunday afternoon and evening, the Luther League will attend the mission festival of the Youngstown Federation of Lutheran Leagues at the St. Paul Lutheran church, Youngstown.

German service at 11 a. m. Trinity Sunday

The final festival Sunday of the church year is this Sunday, designated Trinity Sunday. Christmas, which sets forth the love of God through the sending of His only begotten Son into the world is followed by Easter which glorifies in the resurrection of the Son. Trinity Sunday emphasizes the doctrine of the Trinitarian God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit and we are called upon humbly and believingly to contemplate the divine mystery, one God in three persons. This day belongs to the greatest festivals of the church year. Through remaining Sundays of the year the work of the Trinitarian God in the world and in the hearts of His children is worthy of deep and devoted contemplation. As we pass from the festival half of the church year into the non-festival half may we all be just as zealous and enthusiastic hearers and doers of the word as in those periods when added incentive of the festival spirit urges us forward.

Announcements

On Monday evening Rev. and Mrs. Bauman will entertain the pastors and their wives of the Youngstown conference of the American Lutheran Church.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 the Daughters of Emmanuel will meet in the social rooms of the church.

On Thursday evening at 7:30 the Brotherhood of the church will have a special meeting in the church.

The choir will practice on Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

The CAIRO GARTER MURDERS

CHAPTER XXIX

He was wrong about the dahab's anchoring. She had been losing way in order to tie up at one of the bountiful embankments dotting the lower Nile.

Around five o'clock, dawn commenced to break. Selecting a dark business suit, he donned it, then crossed to the deck and penned a brief note to his host. Infinitely he regretted that a matter, forgotten but all-important to many people, claimed his presence in Cairo—very early. He would send to the dahab for his bag. He thanked M. Philpides very much for one of the most memorable evenings of his life.

Donning a pair of crepe rubber-soled shoes, the departing guest then set a brown felt hat on his head and reconnoitered his cabin's door. Inch by inch, easing aside the chair, he opened it and, peering out, saw nothing but blackness. Sure y it was strange that no night lights burned in the yacht's hull?

A full two minutes he remained motionless, straining to detect the least untoward sound. At the end of it a gentle sigh brought conviction that someone was on guard out there in the dark.

On tiptoes he traversed his cabin and thrust his head out of its port "inch by inch. Looking down he held a sort of leather strip which might afford a foothold, albeit a precarious one. Alas, it ended about twenty feet beyond his position. Still if he were able, by using the foothold, he might regain the yacht's interior on a safer passage than that off which opened the Parthenon Suite. He hoped so . . .

A few minutes later he was inching painfully along the hull's development, when fender strip which he had seized, as he knew, a remarkably effective mask.

"Don't cry out," came his staccato warning. "Won't hurt you!" Even as he sidled to the door, feeling ridiculously like the foiled villain of a melodrama, he was amazed to see how quickly the recaptured self-control. Thank goodness, she had not recognized him!

North sprang for the light switch, but ere he plunged the cabin in darkness, he glimpsed a heap of disordered clothing on a chair. What crystallized his attention was an impression of a garter, black and elaborately shirred. Unfortunately he had no time to see whether there was any decoration attached.

Lolita had caught her breath sharply—to scream? No. As he hurriedly stepped out into the hall, something suspiciously like a giggle followed him.

It required no great skill to gain the deck and, just as the first gray tints appeared in the direction of Arabia and Palestine, North dejected ashore and struck off toward the not distant village. He was able to route from slumber an East Indian storekeeper who kept automobile in his compound. North made a dicker for transportation to Cairo.

The C. I. D. Bureau was at the hour of five-thirty silent as the grave; a couple of sleepy-eyed native inspectors were on duty.

"Clive Bimbashi? Where is he?"

North demanded of a stalwart Egyptian sergeant.

"Allah knows, Effendi," the blue-coated figure replied gloomily. "His Honor went out early yesterday evening. He is not returned. He tried to reach you, but could not. Something very bad had happened."

North stiffened to meet the disaster. "What?"

For answer the sergeant led him into an adjoining office in which a group of European police officers were gloomily regarding a small wooden box that contained a man's thumb, neatly severed, lying upon a pad of cotton batting.

"Note with it said it was Major Kilgour's—he's the new Military Intelligence bloke they sent down from England to show us how to handle the garter murders."

"The chief inspector is furious," continued the constable. "Sir George Ruthven ordered every available constable and inspector in Cairo to search for Major Kilgour."

Struck by a sudden recollection North inquired about the search of Naticka's home. Nothing of an interesting nature had come to light, he learned; no incriminating correspondence, no garters—nothing. The servants were in no way suspicious.

Quickly North rallied from his momentary shock. He took the grisly thumb, hurried into the laboratory and set to work. . . . When he had finished, North announced to the constables:

"It appears that Mr. Armstrong is lying."

"Lying sir? 'Ow do you make that out?"

"Constable, the amputation's precision suggests it was performed either on a dead or an unconscious body. The unwillingness of the blood to dissolve, however, proves that this finger has not been severed from a recently living man."

"Then, Effendi, this means that Major Kilgour has been murdered? That the dog-delivered Armstrong is guilting us?"

"It looks like it," North snapped. "We mustn't leap to conclusions, though."

Chief Inspector Clive strode in, unshaven, bloodshot of eyes and haggard. His dark blue uniform was mired by dust.

"Morning, Captain," said he dully.

"I see you've become acquainted with Armstrong's latest atrocity."

"Yes, North put the question he dreaded to ask. "Any trace of Kilgour?"

"We've traced him as far as Basus."

"Basus?"

"It's a village downstream. Clive amplified. "He was seen riding with a white man in an open car."

"You got a description of the man with him?"

"Yes," Clive dropped heavily into a chair. "Why?"

"Was he like this?" Rapidly North rendered a verbal sketch of Stag Melhorne.

"By the Lord Harry!" Clive gaped in astonishment mingled with awe. "Where in the blue blazes did you get that description?"

"Aboard Philpides' yacht. The man I've been describing was aboard. Incidentally, he's the same fellow who chauffeured me the night Naticka Black was murdered."

Clive started up, eyes narrowed. "He's the one who had the Milano-Patria automatic and the Grand Prix ammunition?"

"Yes."

"By Jove, I'd give a lot to lay my hands on him!"

"No doubt, but what good would it do? You can't arrest him."

"I can. He carries weapons without a permit," was the police officer's irritable contradiction.

"That's so. But we've no positive proof of anything in connection with the main problem—yet!"

Hurriedly North sought to apply balm to the other's jangled nerves.

"Just the same, I'm having him brought in," Clive insisted.

In his poignant grief over Kilgour, North's tact and patience were tried but he did not want Melhorne disturbed just yet.

Wearily, Clive washed the grime from his face and hands. "What have you been up to? If you were on Philpides' boat, how did you get back to town so quickly?"

"I seemed wiser to come ashore," was the dry reply. He pulled out the cheque "Ever seen a . . . ate for a quarter of a million dollars?"

"A quarter mil—" Clive sat bolt upright and eagerly his hand shot out to take the cheque. "Who gave it to you?"

"Your friend, Moira McLeod."

"Moira?" Clive's eyelids flew wide open then narrowed suddenly. He uttered a brittle laugh. "Well, she's making more headway than I thought."

"Yes. It's half of the sum intended to purchase the late-lamented Follansbee's whole cargo. I've no idea where she got it."

"Who signed it?"

"That's the catch" was North's acid comment. "There's only a fingerprint and the odd part of a finger print and the odd part of a finger print and the odd part of a finger print."

"I don't," snapped the Englishman, and he flushed a little. "She's deuced clever, beautiful and altogether the most—er—fascinating woman I've ever met." Awkwardly he shifted the subject. "I said, did you see anything of a chap of ours aboard the Hila?"

"Yes. Did he check in late last night?"

"No," Clive looked up, surprised. "Why?"

"Would he, if he had gone ashore, come down here straight off?"

"Yes. He knew we wanted a translation of the scarab."

The police officer looked so weary and weebone North hated to say, "Then I'm afraid you won't see him again. He was supposed to have gone ashore at el Uargan."

"The devil!" Clive groaned then, leaping to the phone, rang up Sir

Passed by the Beauty Censor

Something a bit different than war pictures is this one taken "somewhere in San Francisco" and passed by the beauty censor. The girls have been selected for the court of "Miss Streamline" at the San Francisco Golden Gate exposition. Left to right, they are Edna Phillips of Seattle, Connie O'Connor of San Francisco, Virginia Engles of Los Angeles and Beverly Gross of Portland, Ore.

Lovely Lois—on Honeymoon

Here's lovely Lois Andrews, the 16-year-old showgirl bride of George Jessel, comedian, after arrival in Hollywood where she is honeymooning. War Kills And Destroys, Plays No Favorites

All's Quiet on Western Front—but Not Today

Mother, One of Millions, Hides From Bombers

Innocent victims of the war, a million Belgians are streaming over the roads toward France. It is the "greatest exodus in history," according to foreign correspondents. This new radiophoto from Europe, taken in Belgium, shows a war-stricken family, mother and daughter and baby in a carriage, cowering in a ditch as Nazi bombers roar overhead. YANKEES FIND RANGE AGAINST LEFT-HANDERS

Ival Goodman Is Hero Of Hour As League-Leading Reds Battle Phils Again

Outfielder Cracks Home Run With Bases Loaded to Give Reds 7-2 Victory In 11-Inning Game; Hold Lead Over Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Rightfielder Ival Goodman, who was born in Northview, Mo., and has been accounting for his actions with the Reds since 1935, was hero of the hour as the Rhinelanders faced Philadelphia again today.

With the score tied in the 11th inning and two out yesterday, Goodman clouted a home run. The fact that the bases were loaded when Ival decided it was his time to howl, made it a perfect "fifth column" attack which gave the Reds a 7 to 2 triumph over the Phils.

The victory enabled Cincinnati to maintain the league lead as Brooklyn nosed out the Cards 4 to 3 and remained one-half game behind.

Goodman's homer ended a tedious tussle. A base on balls to Morrie Aronovich, Bill Werber's error and Heinie Mueller's double gave the Phils a run off Jim Turner in the second. They added another in the sixth on four passes and seemed headed for a shutout behind Walter Beck's effective pitching.

Tie Score
Goodman singled in the eighth and Frank McCormick hit his fourth home run, scoring Ival ahead of him to make the count 2 and 2. Mike McCormick, first up in the 11th, doubled to center off Southpaw Lloyd Brown, who relieved Beck in the ninth for the Phils. Eddy Joost sacrificed McCormick to third. Ernie Lombardi and Bill Werber were passed, filling the bases. Lonnie Frey hit at Mahan at first, who got McCormick at the plate.

Then Goodman came through. A walk to Frank McCormick and Johnny Rizzo's two-base hit produced the fifth run of the inning. Meantime, the Phils touched three Cincinnati relief hurlers, Red Barrett, Whitey Moore and Elmer Riddle, for only one hit in the last five innings.

Paul Derringer, out for his fourth victory, was ordered to take over for the Reds today against Hurley Mulcahy for the Phils.

LISBON IS FOE FOR PLACENTIA

Lakers Attempt to Make Up for Defeat In Opening Game

Intent on making up for an opening game defeat, Lake Placid's semi-pro baseball team seeks its first victory of the 1940 season against the Lisbon A. C. at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the lake diamond.

The Lakers lost an opening game for the first time in seven years last Sunday when they fell before the Akron Simpson Clothiers, 3-1. Southpaw Carl Hannan is expected to receive the mound assignment for Placentia, while Lisbon will probably use either Lefty Scott, Jack Muniz or Gunneth, a former Youngstown Sheet & Tube pitcher.

A pitchers' duel is expected if the two left-handers face each other. While Hannan and Scott are both fast-ball artists, Hannan appears to be a better curve-ball pitcher and possesses a wicked out-drop. Scott lost his only start against Placentia last year by one run.

The Lisbon team, unbeaten in two games, is reported much improved over last year.

The curtain dropped on the 1939-40 bowling season in Salem last night as the 12-team Grate Ladies' league completed its schedule at the Grate Recreation alleys.

The women's circuit is the last of 12 Salem bowling leagues to finish its season. Bowlers will not set aside their minerals until next September when the 1940-41 season will open.

A record of 74 wins and 25 losses gave the Endres-Gross ladies the championship of the Grate league. Members of the winning team are Mrs. Ruth Hine, Mrs. E. Warren, Mrs. Frieda Orr, Miss Mary Burson and Miss Olive Ramsey.

The Endres-Gross ladies paced the league throughout the greater part of the season, finishing 13 games ahead of the Unknowns, who captured second place with 61 wins and 38 losses.

Grate Team Third
Trailing the Unknowns by one game, the Grate Recreation team took third place with 60 victories and 39 defeats.

The Jean Frocks posted 57 wins against 42 set-backs to take fourth place, while the Church Budget and Finney Beauty Shoppe finished in a tie for fifth with similar records of 52 victories and 47 defeats.

Seventh place went to Brownie's Service Station ladies, who won 45 games and lost 54.

Three teams—Trades Class, Sun-ny Beauty Shoppe and Smith Garage—won 44 games and lost 55 to end the season in a tie for eighth place.

Kaufman's Grocery finished eleventh with 41 wins and 58 losses, while the Sinclairs wound up in the cellar with only 18 victories in 99 games.

Southpaw Hurlers Can No Longer Put 'Jinx' On New York's World Champions

Yankees Crush White Sox To Move Within Half Game of Seventh Place; Hack Injured In Cubs' Game, But Not Seriously

Signals over! Lefthanded pitching isn't making the World Champion New York Yankees lie down and play dead any longer, so the opposing managers in the American league had better scout out some new strategy quickly.

There was no doubt that any kind of southpaw slinging would befuddle the Yanks during the first month of the season. The champions faced lefthanded hurlers in 14 of their first 20 games and lost ten of them.

But things are different now. During the gloomy days the Yankees' batting order had five lefthanded hitters (six when Allyn Donald or Vernon Gomez pitched. Yesterday there were only two and the club crushed the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

The second straight triumph raised the Yanks within a half game of the seventh place White Sox.

In the day's only other game in the American league the Cleveland Indians massacred the Washington Senators 18-1. Al Milnar pitched seven-hit ball and easily snared his fourth consecutive victory.

Check Giants
In the best pitching stint, however, Claude Passeau held the New York Giants to two singles in giving the Chicago Cubs a 4-0 shutout.

The game was marred by an accident in the first inning when Stan Hack of the Cubs was hit on the head by a ball batted by Team-mate Hank Leiber. Hack was knocked unconscious, but the injury wasn't as serious as at first believed and the player was due to be released from a New York hospital today.

A heroic home run with the bases loaded in the 11th inning was Ival Goodman's good deed for the Cincinnati Reds and helped break up the game with the Phils 7-2. Boom-Boom Beck held the Reds helpless for seven innings, but in the eighth Frank McCormick hit a two-run homer to tie the score.

Brooklyn managed to edge out the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

Pytlak Plays
Frankie Pytlak, who ended his holdout campaign early this month, made his first appearance of the year as he caught the last two innings for Cleveland.

Manager Buckey Harris indicated he would send Joe Haynes, young right-hander, to the hill against the Tribe today. The Yankees arrive tomorrow for three games, followed by Boston for two.

Meanwhile, the Indians received welcome news about their two crimples. Center Fielder Roy Weatherly reported he was ready for action after being out a week with a strained leg muscle. Oscar Grimes, utility fielder, was due at his home here after being confined to a Washington hospital with broken facial bones. He was hit by a batted ball in pre-game practice on the Tribe's eastern trip.

Blue Sox To Meet Alliance Sunday
Opening their 1940 season, the Salem Blue Sox baseball team will meet the Alliance Williams nine at 1:30 p. m. Sunday at Tolerton's field on the Depot rd.

Hrvatini or Balch will be on the mound for the Sox.

fense recommendations yesterday, met again to add another $132,000,000 to the army bill.

Overlooked In Haste

This additional sum would represent the army's share of the $200,000,000 fund which the President requested congress Thursday to place at his personal disposal. The subcommittee worked at such a pace yesterday that this item was overlooked, and today's session was to remedy the omission.

One of the first steps toward expanding the nation's industrial resources to meet preparedness demands was the calling of a meeting of American aircraft manufacturers here Monday. The subject for discussion was increasing warplane production to 50,000 annually.

Assistant Secretary of War Johnson estimated that a 25,000-a-year mark would be reached by next January without emergency methods.

The question of federal financial aid in expanding plant capacity was being studied. Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday. The government might build and retain ownership of new plants, he continued, but entrust their operation to private enterprise.

Theatre Attractions

Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor in "Waterloo Bridge" at the State Sunday through Tuesday.

Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor are the screen's newest romantic team, appearing together in "Waterloo Bridge," at the State Sunday through Tuesday.

An excellent supporting cast includes Virginia Field, Maria Ouspenskaya, Lucile Watson and C. Aubrey Smith.

The dramatic love story of two young people who meet on Waterloo bridge in London, are separated by a war and are re-united after that war has played havoc with their lives, gives the English actress her best role since "Scarlett," and Taylor has the best in several pictures. Taylor has the type of role needed to display his real acting talents while Miss Leigh and another young English actress, Virginia Field, turn in outstanding performances.

Sunday at Grand

At the Grand Sunday only are: "The House of Seven Gables," screen version of the Nathaniel Hawthorne classic, featuring George Sanders, Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Nan Grey and Dick Foran; and a Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Chumps at Oxford."

The State's other features this week will be: "Til We Meet Again," with Merle Oberon and George Brent, Pat O'Brien and Geraldine Fitzgerald, in a remake of the Kay Francis, William Powell hit of several years ago, showing Wednesday and Thursday.

Friday and Saturday, "If I Had My Way" starring Bing Crosby with the young singing actress, Gloria Jean, Charles Winninger, and El Brendel.

Concluding at the State tonight is "20 Mule Team," starring Wallace Beery.

Other Features

At the Grand next week will be: "Black Friday," featuring Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Stanley Ridges, Anne Nagel, Anne Gwynne and James Craig; and "Grandpa Goes to Town," a Higgins family story, with James Lucile and Russell Gleason, Henry Davenport and Maxie Rosenblum, showing Wednesday only.

Friday and Saturday, Zane Grey's "Light of Western Stars," with Victor Jory, Jo Ann Sayers, Russell Hayden, Noah Beery, Jr., and J. Farrell MacDonald.

The Grand's feature tonight is "Young Buffalo Bill" with Roy Rogers and George Hayes.

NEW DORMITORY
SEEN AS MODEL

Wisconsin U. Building
Has Comforts of Home
— and Then Some

(By United Press)

MADISON, Wis.—The 500 co-eds who will reside in the University of Wisconsin's new women's dormitory when it is opened this summer will have all the comforts of home—and then some.

Situated near the center of the campus on the university's famed observatory hill, the new structure commands a beautiful view of all of Lake Mendota and will have grounds terraced down to the willow trees which line the lake shore.

The hall contains two dining rooms to seat 250 persons each, several large modernistic lounges, numerous recreation rooms, meeting rooms, and a sound-proofed music room for radio and records. It will feature many small "fudge kitchens," laundries and pressing rooms, and other rooms for card games or informal discussions. There will be sun bathing facilities on the roof.

Each room will have a built-in radio on which residents will have a choice of two predetermined stations. When a boy calls on a girl, he will go to the main desk in the lobby. The person in charge merely flips a switch which turns off the radio in the proper room, and speaking into a microphone, communicates the information to the girl through the radio loudspeaker.

The boy then retires to a large lounge. When his date arrives they can go into one of half a dozen small "beau parlors" where they can close the door and have a confidential chat.

Glass bricks art used generously throughout the dormitory for additional light and rubberized floor covering in corridors assures silence.

flank of the Belgian front in a huge pincer movement.

German mechanized forces, which have penetrated the Allied lines in the vicinity of Charleroi, some 30 miles south of Brussels, were reported to be fanning out, threatening encirclement of British right flank.

Although the situation was confused by the high speed of the action and the widespread use of roving mechanized units on both sides, the new Allied position in the north appeared about as follows: The left flank of the British forces rests on the west coast of Holland, near the Belgian border. The line extends southeast in front of Antwerp, bends back to pass west of Brussels and then almost due south to the French border near Maubeuge.

From Maubeuge the front follows an irregular line southeast to Retel, about 100 miles from Paris, and then bends sharply east toward Longwy.
